LOCALLY SPEAKING

"In every work that he began he did it with all his heart—and prospered."

FROM rumblings heard about town it appears that we are going to have a sizeable crop of candidates in the field for the position of chief of police in Paris. The race, let it be hoped, will be conducted on a high plane, in a good-natured manner and may the best man win.

"When Paris desides to do anything it seems that everybody goes into the work whole-heartedly and the result is that we never do things by halves," said a local citizen to a holiday visitor. And that is a mighty fine compliment which every loyal Parisian should strive earnestly to merit.

So much good work was done in Paris and Lamar county in spreading Christmas cheer that it would probably be unfair to place stress on any particular group or individual, but it seems only fair to say that the work of the Exchange club and the Firemen of the city, in collecting and mending toys to be distributed Christmas, was an exceptionally happy idea, effectively carried out.

The King's Daughters, of course, is the fountain head and main source for such work. This organization affords individuals the opportunity to spread cheer not only during the holidays, but to have a definite part in intelligently directed aid to the needy.

But, in addition to the King's daughters work which must be of and by the people, many other organizations rendered noble service during the holidays and many individuals whose names will never be known, spread much happiness to those in need.

JANUARY 1 marks the beginning of tax renditions, the payment of automobile license tax, the testing of lights on cars and also reminds one that only thirty days are left in which to pay all taxes, city, county and state.

Throughout the state for some time there has been considerable discussion of and agitation for the payment of taxes in quarterly remittances, but the plan does not seem to be practical.

Our city and county governments have made plans and shaped their programs for many years on the plan which brings tax money in according to the present system and it therefore seems difficult to adjust their affairs to meet the installment plan, even if the people should consider it wise to do so.

The old tax problem is with us always. Often one hears it said that "nothing is certain except death and taxes." Right now we are having some discussion on proposed legislation to do away with all or a part of the ad valorem tax and to produce tax revenues by income tax altogether.

Some favor such a plan and others oppose it. Our legislators will likely be faced with a decision on some such measure either during the coming year or at a later date.

The voters spoke in no uncertain terms during the past year on the voting of additional taxes. A halt has been called for it seems almost impossible to vote taxes in some cities and counties for improvements that are regarded as imperative. But the tax burdens seemed to grow with the passing of each year until some drastic action was considered necessary. Politicians have "saved the country" from high taxes for many years, but they do this mainly in campaign speeches.

The people want tax relief—city, county, state and federal and they know that they can not have lower taxes if they continue to vote for measures which call for more of the taxpayers' money.

Our own city and county could wisely invest public funds right at this time, but the voters do not feel that they can afford more taxes. It will, however, be a happy day when some of the public debt has been paid and we can have a little money for needed improvements without placing too great a burden on our tax-payers.

Some day there will be a more just method of taxation and a more equitable basis of rendition. One business man said the other day that an income tax for all purposes would be the fairest system possible. But right away a lot of folks disagreed with him.

Anyway, while we are digging down for the old tax dollar it is well to give the subject a little thought and to be in position to pass intelligently on any change which may be suggested in the system by the legislature in the future.

FARMERS UNION LEADER RESUMES ATTACK ON LEGGE

John Simpson, Oklahoma City, Attacks Farm Board In Speech

SAYS WANT TO KEEP WHEAT PRICE DOWN

Describes as Unwholesome Boards Practice Buying Selling Futures

DALLAS, Dec. 29. (AP)—John A. Simpson of Oklahoma City, national president of the Farmers' Union, renewed his attack on the Federal Farm Board, and its president, Alexander Legge, in an address Monday before the Texas Farmers' Union and the Farmers Marketing Association of America.

Thomas was quoted as stating that Legge admitted to the committee that the board did not want the prices of cotton and wheat to advance at present.

The speaker read from the letter that the farm board chairman admitted the board sold 3,500,000 bushels of wheat on the Chicago stock exchange November 22 to keep the price of wheat down so it would be in the reach of the buying public in "these depressed days."

Legge also admitted he did not believe it would be to the best interests of the public for the price of cotton to be higher, Simpson stated. "He does not realize that history shows the price of wheat has nothing to do with the price of bread nor that of cotton with the price of clothes," the speaker went on.

Simpson said the farm board's practice of buying and selling futures on the exchanges could result in persons who knew of the planned transactions in advance making millions from personal operations on the market. This he described as an unwholesome condition.

Senator Caraway of Arkansas and Senator Frazier of North Dakota, other members of the senate agricultural committee confirmed Senator Thomas' statements, Simpson said.

Simpson again demanded congressional investigation of the farm board's practices.

No farmers' organization saw the farm marketing act before it was introduced and it was offered by Representative Franklin Fort of New Jersey, who does not have a single farmer in his district, the speaker claimed.

Legge would do away with individual farming and substitute corporate farming, Simpson charged.

Believe Capture Slayer of School Teachers Near

BLACKWELL, Okla., Dec. 29, (AP)—Moving secretly, officers believed the slayer of two Blackwell school teacher sisters was not far off Monday night.

As earlier leads exploded, County Attorney Bruce Potter announced officers had in their possession a clew that would lead "to the arrest and positive identification" of the man who shot Jessie and Zexia Griffith to death and tossed their bodies from their motor car on a cross-state highway near Tonkawa, Okla., early Sunday.

The county attorney qualified his statement with the phrase "if he is found" but said he expected to make an arrest soon. With Police Chief Charles Wagner of Tonkawa Potter was conducting an intensive search late Monday.

Potter said the only motive for the slaying apparently was mistreatment of the younger sister, Jessie, 24. He would not elaborate on his meager statement.

Thunder Of Guns Carries Story Of Battle Between British Troops And Rebels

RANGOON, Burma, Dec. 29. (AP)—The thunder of guns over wide areas in Southern Burma Monday night indicated a vigorous battle was in progress between government troops and rebels.

Reports of heavy casualties have filtered back to civilization through the dense jungle area between here and the rebel stronghold, but details of what actually was going on were unknown because of the difficulty of communication.

The cause of the rebellion, the rebels, present position and the identity of their leader all remain mysteries. A prince of the wild, mountainous Shan states in eastern Burma with designs on the Burmese throne, has been credited with leading the insurgents, but no confirmation of this report has been obtained.

Fires raged in parts of the jungle which the British troops must traverse, reports reaching here said, and powder smoke clouded the underbrush, hindering the troops in the first major engagement with the rebels.

Maneuvered into a corner, the rebels were faced with the alternative of making a dash for liberty or defending their position to the last ditch.

Outside this area where the fierce fighting is in progress, the country as a whole is tranquil, and it was hoped the government's energetic measures would clear up the situation in a few days.

The disorder first began with a flareup by insurgents north of Rangoon, over a tax collection campaign. Natives killed a government forest ranger and several policemen. British artillery, infantry and machine gun troops went into the Tharawaddy district to put down the uprising.

Two missionaries are known to be in the Tharawaddy district. Although there has been no direct word from either, there was nothing to indicate they had been disturbed. They are the Rev. J. T. Latta of Miltonsburg, Ohio, who is at the mission in Thonze and Miss G. R. Anderson, whose home address was not available here.

CONVICTS ESCAPE FROM CELLS BUT SOON SURRENDER

Twelve In Indiana Jail Released By Key Made From Spoon

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Dec. 29, (AP)—Twelve desperate convicts escaped from their cells in the Indiana state penitentiary Monday, overpowered the guard and seized control of the cell block, but surrendered without a struggle to a large force of guards, city policemen and firemen.

The 12, all of whom had attempted to escape within the last year, were released from their cells with a key made from a spoon made by Joseph Burns, bank robber and leader of the escape plot. They rushed the guard, Guy Burklow, but before they could gag him he shouted for help.

Warden W. H. Daly and his staff responded, but found the cell house doors barricaded. City police rushed into the penitentiary grounds and covered the cell block with machine guns while city firemen manned the prison walls. The prisoners surrendered. Not a shot had been fired. They apparently had no firearms hidden and guards inside the cell houses do not carry weapons.

The plan which failed after Burklow shouted for help apparently was to escape through a window. Two bars had been sawed through when prison authorities gained the cell house and a rope ladder was found nearby.

Warden Daly attributed the attempt to the crowded condition of the penitentiary, pointing out that there were more than 500 men in the "D" cell house designed to accommodate 340.

Youth Held In Death of Girl Is Free On Bond

PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 29, (AP)—Robert L. Williams, 18, University of Texas sophomore, charged with the slaying of Miss Elizabeth Johnson, 16, the girl he had hoped to marry, was released under $10,000 bond Monday after he waived a preliminary hearing.

Shortly after Justice of Peace T. A. Butler, in whose court the charge against Williams had been preferred, announced the amount of bond, it was made with C. T. Baker, E. P. Baker, J. C. Zeck and W. S. Martin as sureties.

The university student, who came here from his home in Austin, where his father, the Rev. S. W. Williams, is presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to spend the holidays with Miss Johnson, formerly his fiance, was represented in court by his brother, Paul Williams, Dallas attorney.

Horse Trader Released On $10,000 Bond After Commissioner Slain

BONHAM, Dec. 29. (AP)—A charge of murder was filed Monday against Jim Robinson, horse trader, arrested Saturday in connection with the death of Sam Powers, county commissioner of Fannin county. Robinson was released under $10,000 bond at the examining trial held here Monday morning.

Saturday night a little after eight o'clock five shots were fired at County Commissioner Sam Powers who was standing in front of Sid Smith's grocery store. Three of the bullets lodged in Powers' back, bringing immediate death.

Witnesses of the scene say Powers was apparently unaware of any danger. No motive for the shooting has been established according to the local authorities.

Immediately after the shooting, Robinson was arrested and taken to the county jail where he remained until the examining trial was held Monday morning. Robinson was released on a $10,000 bond immediately after the trial.

Powers had been county commissioner of precinct one in Fannin county for six years and had recently been re-elected for a fourth term.

INDIANA WOMAN KILLS CHILDREN; THEN SUICIDES

Drowns Two-Year-Old; Strangles Five Year Old Daughter

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 29, (AP)—Mrs. Ruth Nicholas, 32, wife of an Indianapolis attorney, killed her two children, drowning one and strangling the other, then fired a bullet into her head with an army revolver ending her own life here Monday. The woman had been despondent.

The boy, Richard Allen Nicholas, two, was drowned and the girl, Virginia, five, strangled to death with a towel. The boy's body was found in a crib, the clothing saturated with water. A tub of water was near the body.

The body of Mrs. Nicholas was found in her bedroom across the hall, the sheet pulled over her head to deaden the sound of the shot. She clutched a .38 caliber army revolver.

Royal A. Nicholas, husband of Mrs. Nicholas, found the bodies when he returned home from his office. He said his wife had been brooding for several days because they could not move to California to join other relatives. They had once lived in that state.

Must Register Motor Vehicles By January 31

Owners of motor vehicles have until January 31 to register their cars, County Tax Collector Lee Yancey announced Monday. The state law formerly required that motor vehicles be registered by January 1, but it was optional with county officers whether that law be enforced in their respective counties, and the last day of January has always been customary in Lamar county.

Other counties enforced the first of January registration and many arrests were made for not having the state license. At the last session of the legislature last registration date was changed to January 31.

Mr. Yancey also said no registration can be granted unless all papers on the car are presented.

Cash must accompany all registrations. No checks will be accepted.

MARSHAL JOFFRE IMPROVED AFTER RALLIES MONDAY

Gallant War Hero Amazes All France by Recuperative Power

PARIS, Dec. 30, (AP)—(Tuesday)—Marshal Joffre, who hurled back 2,500,000 Germans in 1914 when they were thirty miles from the gates of Paris, made a supreme rally late Monday night and staved off death.

Monday afternoon the venerable 78-year-old warrior sank into a coma and no one felt that he would last the night.

But his staunch constitution held, and his two chief physicians, Professor Leriche and Dr. Boulin, left the hospital of St. Jean-De-Dieu at 30 minutes past midnight after previously refusing to stir from the sickbed.

"However unlikely it may seem," they said, "it is probable that the marshal will live th rough the night. We shall come back about 6 or 7 o'clock a. m."

Thus the beloved "Papa" Joffre, who is fighting gangerous infection as the aftermath of arteritis and suffered the amputation of his left leg more than a week ago, amazed all France by his ability to hold on.

Late Monday afternoon he sank into a coma which indicated he would last only a few hours at most. But at 10:30 o'clock he appeared better, with color replacing the deathlike pallor of his cheeks, and he drank some mineral water and took some nourishment.

His heart beat strongly, also, and his breathing became more regular.

Sheriff Is Idle As Lamar People Grow Law-Abiding

"All's quiet on the Western Front," saith the German novelist Eric Remarque and "All's More Than Quiet In Lamar county," says Sheriff Walters.

There hasn't been an arrest made by the sheriff's force in four days. Practically all the Christmas holidays have gone by and no law breakers have been caught by the officials.

"This is the quietest Christmas I've ever seen. Lamar county folks are getting to be too good," Sheriff Walters says.

If there have been people breaking the law—and the county officers don't think there have been—they haven't been in, around or even near the court house. And if there has been any liquor in Lamar county, these officers haven't heard or smelt of it.

"Things gotta pick up," the sheriff declares. "It's gettin' dull around here. Why we'll have to close up shop if the people don't quit being so good. Why I never saw such people. Last Christmas we did have four or five arrests but this Christmas NONE."

One of the deputies says "I just reckon people are so busy enjoying Santa Claus that they don't have to be bad."

Maybe so.

NORRIS-LUCAS ROW QUIET; NEW CHARGES MADE

Nutt Says Nye Conducting Headline Hunting Probe Against Republicans

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29. (AP)—Placid waters hid the Norris-Lucas row Monday, but the sweep of the waves it set up brought a charge from Joseph R. Nutt that Senator Nye of North Dakota was conducting a headline hunting investigation against the Republican party.

Nutt, who is treasurer of the Republican national committee took cognizance of the statement by Nye Sunday in Florida.

"As was to have been expected," Nutt said, "Chairman Nye of the senate elections investigating committee, declines to apologize for his unwarranted assertion that I set up a 'slush fund' in Washington for the use of the Republican national committee during the last campaign, but he grudgingly states 'that it is barely possible that further investigation may reveal that the $40,000 was not a slush fund'."

Nutt said he had given an accounting of the expenditures from the fund and this accounting was available to Nye "when he made his unfounded assertion".

"The chairman of a senate committee conducting an impartial investigation of elections would be presumed to acquaint himself with all the facts before rushing into print with charges that could not be substantiated," he said. "A failure to do so lays Senator Nye open to the suspicion both of fusincerity and of a desire to have the case prejudiced by the country before all of the evidence was in.

"But Senator Nye's tactics all made for newspaper headlines and this appears to be mostly a headline hunting investigation with the Republican party, its officers and some of its candidates as the particular targets."

The dispute of Senator Norris of Nebraska with other Republican committee officials over whether the party cloak was becoming to him saw no new development.

He contended Sunday in reply to Representatative Wood of Indiana that it was and that he had not promised support for the Democrats in 1932 if they nominated Governor Roosevelt of New York. Wood, chairman of the Republican Congressional committee, had said Norris had promised to support a progressive Democrat if one were named.

High School Boy Suffers Crushed Foot In Accident

Wilson Holmes, 16 year old Paris high school freshman, had his foot crushed late Monday afternoon when the motorcycle which he and Ollie Albers were riding collided with an automobile on the south highway a few yards past Evergreen cemetery. Albers was thrown from the motorcycle and uninjured while Holmes' foot was pinned under the machine.

The boys were riding with two other boys on another motorcycle when the attempted to pass the car. As they were trying to pass, the driver made a left hand turn, colliding with the motorcycle driven by Albers and Holmes.

Holmes companion brought him to St. Joseph's infirmary following the accident where the injured foot was given immediate attention. There were no other injuries. His foot was broken in two places above and below the ankle. The bones between the two breaks crushed. Parents stated that the boy would probably be crippled for life even if the bones knit properly.

Holmes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Holmes who live about two and one half miles east of Paris.

Victims Trapped On Upper Floors of Building In Ontario City

75 SAFELY VACATE ROOMS IN BASEMENT

Proprietor's Son Perishes In Effort to Save His Wife and Children

COCHRANE, Ont., Dec. 29, (AP)—Trapped on the upper floors of the Queen's Hotel, an old hostelry, at least ten persons lost their lives Monday when flames cut off their escape down the single stairway.

The hotel, with accommodations for 100, was destroyed with a loss estimated at $75,000.

The basement of the building had been used as a lodging house for jobless men, but some 75 occupants sleeping there when the fire broke out were believed to have escaped. The exact number of guests in the upper floors of the hotel could not be determined, for the register was burned.

Charles Palangio, son of the proprietor, made his way to safety but went back to try to save his wife and four small children. The entire family was burned to death. At least four others were believed dead although the body of only one man was recovered.

Several persons fractured ankles leaping from windows and one woman was taken to a hospital badly burned.

Charles Reeve, a railway brakeman, one of the first to arrive to the scene said he saw several men at upper windows vainly trying to escape, but he was powerless to aid them.

"I heard them shouting and screaming," he said. "Then a sheet of flame billowed up from the floor below and the shouting suddenly stopped."

The owner of the hotel, James Palangio, Jr., three of his sons and four girl employees escaped in night clothes.

Probe Of Death At Frat House To Be Reopened

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 29, (AP)—A chemist's report showing that Mrs. Mildred Woodruff, pretty 23-year-old San Antonio widow, died of a poison used in bootleg liquor reopened an investigation Monday which already resulted in the arrest of two men, the expulsion of two University of Texas students, and disbanding one of the university's oldest fraternities. Mrs. Woodruff died after a fraternity house party at Austin Thanksgiving day.

All evidence in the case will be submitted to a Travis county grand jury which convenes next week, District Attorney Henry Brooks said. Both Brooks and County Attorney Roy Archer of Travis county were absent on a hunting trip Monday.

Injunction Ends Billion Dollar Steel Merger

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Dec. 29, (AP)—A permanent injunction Monday night restrained consummation of one of the biggest deals in industrial history—the proposed billion dollar merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., with the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins granted the injunction here Monday as a dramatic climax to nearly a year-long battle between some of America's most powerful industrialists and financiers.

The victory belongs to the "underdog" of the fight—Cyrus S. Eaton, 47 year old financier of Cleveland, who led the minority stockholders of Sheet and Tube in their daring attack against the powerful combine of such famous industrialists as Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem; James M. Campbell, chairman of Sheet and Tube, and Henry G. Dalton, a director in both companies.

Unless the merger proponents appeal and are able to win a reversal, the merger is dead.

INSTALLATION AT BAPTIST CHURCH

New Officers Assume Duties At Morning Service; Special Sermon Given

Installation of recently elected officials of the Sunday school and church organization of the First Baptist church took place at the Sunday morning service, the pastor, Dr. W. M. Wright, preaching a sermon on "Consecration for service."

As his text he used a part of I Chronicles 29:5, "And, who, then is willing to consecrate his service this day to the Lord?"

"My sermon this morning," he said "is to be directed to my entire congregation but especially to the official family of this church in our efforts to build up the work of the kingdom of God.

"The Scripture tells us that much money was spent in building the beautiful temple for the worship of God and this should be a lesson to those who have said that we spend too much money on church buildings.

"David was the king and had the power to take all the wealth of his kingdom for the work, but he desired that the gifts of his people for this purpose should be voluntary and how much more he received than just the money! He left the gifts optional with his people, and so does God in taking gifts from us.

"God wants your consecration, your life, and your all given willingly and voluntarily. He wants our hands, so full of work for Him that they will have time for nothing else; your mind so full of Him or nothing else, and your heart so full of love that it will have room for no one else. Let's consecrate ourselves to the work of God and say like Samuel of old 'Speak Lord for thy servant heareth.' And like Isaiah, 'Here am I Lord, send me.'"

At the evening service, a quartet composed of Mrs. Jim Ritchie, Miss Norene Norton, Earl Dale and Caldwell Armstrong, sang "Oh Lord, Abide With Me" by Parry and Dr. Wright preached on the subject "What Will You Do With God's Christmas Gift?"

Weds at Ardmore

Mrs. Ben S. Sturdivant

Special to the News.

PECAN GAP, Dec. 29.—Miss Elizabeth Carlock of this place was married to the Rev. Ben S. Sturdivant of Piedmont, Okla., on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Ardmore, Okla., at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carlock. Dr. R. E. L. Morgan, presiding elder of the Methodist church, read the ceremony in the presence of a number of friends of the two families.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, T. W. Carlock of Pecan Gap, and the groom was attended by Herschel Burgin of Dallas as best man.

The bride was born and reared at Pecan Gap, and after attending the primary schools there was graduated from the high school at Ardmore. She received her A. B. degree last June from Southern Methodist university, where, during her senior year, she was chosen president of the Girls' Honor Council.

Mr. Sturdivant received his early education in the schools of Whitewright, and for six years was a student in Southern Methodist university, being graduated there in 1930 with both an A. B. and B. D. degree. He is now pastor of the Methodist church at Piedmont, Okla.

The couple left Ardmore after the wedding for a short trip to Ft. Worth, Dallas and Oklahoma City. They will be at home at Piedmont.

CHRISTMAS SERMON BY REV. J. R. BROWN

At Bonham street Methodist church the Rev. J. Russell Brown, pastor, used as his Sunday morning subject "Where Is He That Is Born King?"

He said in part:

"Let us be thankful that there came a time when leading thinkers ceased asking, 'When shall Messiah come?' and began asking 'Where is He?' For then the age-long quest of men began to bear results.

"There was a difference between the Wise Men and Herod the King. The former asked to see the newborn King that they might worship Him. He represented the climax of their thinking. The king asked after the child that he might worship him also,' but his sole reason for finding the child was because that Child might interfere with the plans of a king. Is any man a safe man or citizen when the coming of the Christ-child arouses not joy but selfish animosity?

"Would that we of this day might learn that the new day for the world is being born in the child-life of today, which if it could only be educated into the following of the Child 'who is born king' would bring in the kingdom.

"Where is He? He is found in the life of today, more regal in influence and power than ever before. He lives as King in the individual lives of thousands of men and women and children who know Him better and serve Him more truly than the disciples of other generations. The supreme question to each of us is, 'Where is He in my life?' For that is the key to my happiness and success."

CUNNINGHAM WILL OFFER RESIGNATION

CHARITY GROUP SUPPLIES FOOD

King's Daughters Deliver 300 Baskets to Unfortunates Christmas

Five hogs, five yearlings, 35 pounds of sausage and other meat, a countless number of oranges, apples and all kinds of fruit, bushels of potatoes, canned goods, flour, everything that goes to make a Christmas dinner fit for kings was put into the 300 baskets delivered to unfortunate families on Christmas day by the King's Daughters, Paris charity organization. Besides these baskets of food, 1000 children were given good clothing and toys.

"We tried to give toys and clothes to suit the individual child," Mrs. Turner F. Duncan, head of the organization, said Monday. "For instance, there was one little girl with brown hair and eyes to whom we gave a red coat and beret along with her toys. This same little girl had told us that she wanted Santa to bring her some red gloves instead of a doll so some red woolen mittens were sent and the little girl was made happy with her outfit."

No old clothes—too out of date to be of use to any one—were given. Good clothes, reconditioned and not too badly worn, were distributed.

This year besides their toys, clothes and food each little girl was given a brand new purse with a brand new dime in it by one of the King's Daughters members.

Mrs. Duncan also said that so many garments were given away during the holidays that there are only ten pieces of clothing left in the King's Daughters chest.

Dear Mr. Patterson:

I feel like I received as good training from you as I would have from any other school. There was a businesslike atmosphere in your school which you do not find in every school and it makes one enjoy their work more. We, Bessie and I, certainly enjoyed the six months while attending your school and if I ever have the opportunity to recommend your school to a prospective student it will give me great pleasure.

OIL SHOWING IS HAD AT KLONDIKE

Woodbine Sand Encountered at Shallow Depth Says Driller

A strong showing of oil was encountered Sunday afternoon and Monday morning at the well being drilled by D. S. Hoad near Klondike. The showing of gas was very slight according to Mr. Hoad, but he was enthusiastic over the showing of oil.

"When we shut down Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock I am confident that the well as it stood then would have produced between 60 and 100 barrels of oil, but we intend to go deeper—say about ten feet and then ream out the hole to set 9 inch casing."

The drill encountered what Mr. Hoad says is the Woodbine sand, of the same formation found in the Mexia fields. This sand is about 60 feet thick, Mr. Hoad said.

The well was shut down Monday afternoon on account of lack of fuel oil, and no more drilling can be done until fuel is obtained, which may require three or four days.

Mr. Hoad says this is the first time in his knowledge that the Woodbine sands have been encountered at 1500 feet, and does not attempt to explain it. In other localities where the Woodbine is encountered, according to Mr. Hoad, the depth averages around 3000 feet.

The Klondike test is located on the farm of F. R. Baker, negro, and is known as the Hoad No. 1. It is financed by Mr. Hoad and other local capital. A rotary drill is being used.

DANGER IN PATERNALISM

AMERICANS are the most heavily insured people in the world. They buy more and pay for all of it.

Life insurance in the United States has proved itself to be good business for the individual and a sound investment.

We have health insurance, too, but not of a socialistic kind, such as that which has Europe in its clutches, much to its alarm. There it is found that national health insurance has produced a remarkable leap in the numbers alleged to be ill. One man in four now claims health benefits in a year. Forty-three out of every hundred married women also put in claims in a year. In some classes the demands for sick payments have jumped 150 per cent in a decade.

Were all such claims strictly honest, they would proclaim the continent a more unhealthy land than even the worst of the tropical countries.

It is a lesson the people of the United States should heed, for they are headed into the same wind. There is increasing pressure upon the federal and state governments for old age pensions and unemployment and health insurance, all at the government's expense. Once established, the nation will see old age creeping up with strangely accelerated speed, millions habitually jobless and the sick and ailing as numerous as jobholders in Washington. And the lion's share of the doles would go to the new army of government jobholders which would be required and the people who voted right and controlled the most votes.

TIMIDITY IN THE SENATE

THE action of the senate foreign relations committee in postponing action on the question of American adherence to the World Court for another year was not a victory for the anti-adhesionists as much as it was a humiliating defeat for the administration supporters who allowed themselves to be awed into submission by a handful of politicians.

Timidity! That explains it. Friends of the court, fearful of defeat without cause, were stampeded by an obviously weak opposition into voting not to report the protcools out until next December. Had the friends of the court possessed the courage of the conspirators, who have a right to gloat over their victory against great odds in numbers the battle would now be over, the cause of world peace the victor.

At the worst, had the committee reported out the protocols, two weeks of talk by senators unfriendly to American adhesion would be followed by cloture, which would result 48 hours later in settling the issue.

Though the opposition is claiming as many as 30 senators, it is not likely that in a show down more than 16 would vote against American entrance. That disposes of the specious excuse that postponement was necessary to prevent a legislative jam and a special session.

THE TABLES TURNED

HERETOFORE citizens with the power to vote have often been lethargic in the exercise of their duty and privilege. It has been necessary to urge, to cajole, and almost threaten them to get expression at the polls on men and measures. More recently we have concrete example of the citizens doing their duty unexpectedly and of officials nullifying that vote to partial extent through neglect to make proper returns to the state.

The voters recently expressed approval of four amendments. Twelve counties failed to make proper certification of the return. It was all right in this instance because majorities for the amendment were sufficient to maintain the victory. However, it could very well happen that a narrow margin either way might be turned by the report of one county's vote.

There are some harsh things said about the citizen who fails to vote: what then are we to think of county officials who neglect to certify returns after the voter has done his duty? It is easy to suggest there ought to be a law handling those who fail to do their official duty, but the voters themselves have it in their power to assess the best punishment at the polls.

LESS RED TAPE IS SEEN IN ADMINISTERING LAWS OF RADIO BROADCASTING

By Harold A. LaFount
Federal Radio Commissioner

"RED TAPE", which has hampered the activities of the Federal Radio commission administering the radio laws, is being eliminated as expeditiously as possible and a "giant stride" has just been taken in the broadcasting field toward this end by lengthening of the station licensing period from three to six months.

The task of simplifying formal procedure in radio regulation is a tedious one. However, the agency is gradually attaining the desired end. Costly litigation, both to the government and to the station licenses, now entailed because of short license periods and other actions, it is hoped will be sharply curtailed through the innovation of new methods and practices.

Stations now spending thousands upon thousands of dollars in litigation before the commission and the courts could well divert those funds to improvement of programs for the benefit of the public.

I do not absolve the commission of all blame for this maelstrom of litigation. But the stations themselves, quite naturally, are responsible for much of it. When in the first instance a station applies for something which it knows the commission can not properly grant, and then appeals to the courts from the commission's adverse opinion, unnecessary expense, both to the station and to the government is caused.

But the listener is the real sufferer. For the money the station spends to carry its legal fight comes from the proceeds of the stations under ordinary circumstances. It cuts into the operating budget of the station, and consequently into its talent. A broadcaster spending his money in the courts can not spend it for programs. The listener, therefore, is denied his rights.

With the lengthening of licensing periods from three to six months, a burden is lifted not only from the stations, but from the commission. Prior to this time the commission could do nothing about the terms of the licences since the radio act of 1927 as amended, specified that until Dec. 31, 1930, licenses be issued for not longer than 90 days in the broadcasting band.

More stability is given broadcasting by the lengthening of the licensing period, and yet, at the same time, the structure is kept sufficiently fluid to permit changes which the commission deems in the public interest.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

WHY MARRIAGE WAS A FAILURE

From the Marshall News:

A NEW YORK girl born to great wealth and high education is out in an article in a leading magazine declaring marriage is a failure. Two years ago she married a good, honest, clean young man who provided her with a fine home, but life was too hum drum for her and she went on the stage, then into the movies.

Then came divorce proceedings. There was no scandal connected with the case. He wanted a wife, and she wanted a career. The two wants won't mix. She claimed her aspirations were being suppressed by his desire that she make him a home, and she therefore very learnedly (?) discourses through six pages that marriage is a failure.

The trouble is that this young woman never realized what marriage meant. She writes of suppressing her aspirations but she had the wrong kind. Any woman who enters the marriage state who has any aspirations that she puts before the aspirations of wanting to make a home and become a mother is sure to make a wreck of her matrimonial life.

And thank God, there are still plenty of young women old fashioned enough and sweet enough, and good enough, to joyfully go right into matrimony with the heaven-born aspirations to make a home for the man she loves and bear him children to make them both happy. And you will never hear of any of these young women writing about marriage being a failure.

LOSING JURISDICTION

From the Daily Oklahoman:

BY its refusal to review the action of the Arkansas Democratic executive committee in excluding negro voters from democratic primaries, the supreme court at Washington has left effective in Arkansas a rule the court already has nullified in Texas. While the Arkansas and Texas rules were identical, they differed entirely in their sources. The Texas primaries are conducted under the laws of the commonwealth while the primaries in Arkansas are controlled entirely by party organizations. Since they are the creatures of statutory law, the Texas organizations are powerless to enforce any ruling that trespasses upon the fifteenth amendment.

Since the Arkansas organizations are non-legal, they can enforce any rule they formulate. By repealing their state primary laws the democrats of Texas could follow the course pursued in Arkansas without any interference from the federal courts, but as long as those laws are in force they must admit all voters to the primary polls without regard to race, color or previous condition of servitude.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

From the Mineral Wells Index.

SENATOR Wagner, democrat of New York, has declared for unemployment insurance as the next step in his program for dealing with the problems of the jobless. As soon as congress convenes after the holidays he will introduce a resolution calling for a study of the private and public unemployment insurance systems in the United States and in foreign countries and will introduce a bill imposing federal and state co-operation in the maintenance of such a system. Senator Wagner is author of the measures now pending in congress to provide a long range program for preventing unemployment and provide adequate statistics to deal with the problem. It is said a member of the Texas legislature will introduce an unemployment insurance measure. If so, there will be lively discussion over its merits and demerits under the Big Dome this winter. A new civilization forces to the front line new economic problems. Many acute ones are in the offing.

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN!

ALL of US

By Marshall Maslin

"The trouble with me," says the Sad Young Man, with the dirty collar, "is I've got an Inferiority Complex."

"What's holding me back," moans the Serious Young Lady whose hair needs washing, "is my Inferiority Complex."

"What gets in MY way," says I, who never can remember to buy a new pair of garters, "is that I'm naturally lazy and a genius at putting off until tomorrow the things I should do today."

I've heard a lot about the Inferiorty Complex since I grew too old for G. A. Henty thrillers and took to reading solemn tomes about what's inside of us and what makes us tick and how many million stars there are in the infinitefinite heavens. I've flopped many a time and been ashamed of myself. But I've never as far as I can remember, blamed my failures on that Inferiority Complex we hear so much about.

In fact, I've wished more than once that I had an Inferiority Complex of my own—because an Inferiority Complex doesn't hold you back. It kicks you ahead! It put you out in front! It makes you do things! It rides with iron hooves over your timidity and your laziness and your cowardice—and sets you on top.

If a man has an Inferiority Complex, he says to himself: "I must show people how wonderful I am. I must get something done before I die. I must invent something, discover something, win a battle, write a song, do a dance, beat a drum, make my name shine in the heavens—and force people to turn and look at my name and whisper to each other as I pass by."

An Inferiority Complex is vanity. It is not fear of action, although it IS fear of being thought inferior. It tramples, it elbows, it battles madly, it is often a selfish thing—and sometimes it makes men and women do cruel and ridiculous things. But it is real, it is alive, it is something we can Work with and use. It is no dull, useless Lump. It is Rich Quartz, with streaks of gold running through it.

The Flag-pole Sitter, the Human Fly, the man who eats sixty hard boiled eggs at one sitting, the man who makes a million, the soldier who leads the charge, the poet in his garret, the lad on the football field, the transatlantic flyer—all these may be driven along by that nagging, persistent Inferiority Complex. It forces a shabby Corsican kid to be a Napoleon. And sometimes I think it made an Abraham Lincoln out of a gangling backwoods boy . . . An Inferiority Complex is not so bad if you know how to use it.

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By Mark Barron

NEW YORK, (AP)—In one of his new plays Robert E. Sherwood takes up the question of New York seceding from the union.

If New York is not America, so he has a reporter argue, why shouldn't New York be allowed to withdraw from the United States and become an independent country?

"I think they should be allowed to do so," a "senator from South Dakota" replies. "It certainly would be a blessing."

"A blessing for New York?" the reporter inquiries.

"No, a blessing for the rest of the country," the "senator" retorts.

Family Skeleton

While it probably does not impress the remainder of the country the leading current news story locally concerns the revelations being made about New York's policemen and magistrates.

A special court of inquiry has charged that many of those wearing the bluecoats and judiciary robes of the law are guilty of questionable acts, such as bribery, false arrests, or unwise court decisions.

One would imagine that the discovery of these weak links in our judiciary system would demoralize the public and undermine their respect for the law. On the contrary New Yorkers seem to be obeying traffic laws and speaking politely to policemen with the usual courtesy and zeal.

A survey of the "letters to the editor" columns in New York newspapers reveals that New Yorkers are not too concerned about their family skeleton.

What interests them much more are (1) The contest between President Hoover and congress, (2) methods to relieve unemployment, and (3) whether dirigibles should be allowed to anchor to the mast atop the Empire State building.

Underdog Triumph

Not long ago the sale of theatre tickets was taken out of the hands of agencies and given over to telegraph companies. It was believed this system would eliminate most of the speculators, and allow the public to buy once again, good seats at low prices.

It is too early to tell if the system is a success, but it has already achieved a triumph for the underdog—that is, the theatergoer who can afford only the box office price of a ticket.

Theater managers report that all the wealthier people—those who wear evening dress and silk hats—are getting seats in the back rows of the theater, while the man from the street is getting the best seats up front.

The explanation is simple. The man from the street is getting the best seats at the box office or telegraph agency. The wealthier people continue to buy their seats at their favorite agency—paying the usual premium—but the agent now can get only the less desirable seats.

This triumph for the common people seems to indicate that democracy rules—at least in front of the footlights.

Announcement was made that A. P. York, who had been agent for the Dallas News in Paris about two years, and sold his news stand to Ed Pearce, who would take over the agency, Mr. York going to Greenville.

Rev. Bob Shuler preached at Centenary Methodist church on "What the New Year May Bring Forth" and in the evening there was a musical program by the children.

The News carried an advertisement for a man at Walnut Ridge, Ark., offering ear corn in car lots at $1.60 per bushel.

The temperature Sunday rose slowly from 12 degrees mark it made Saturday.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

When William Brackeen, resident of Paris, died in 1882, he left an estate of several thousand dollars in land, negroes, livestock and personal property, including one cross-cut saw, to be divided betwetn 13 heirs—his wife and 12 children. One of his sons, James M., was appointed by the court as administrator, with James R. G. Wortham, a son-in-law and William G. Brackeen securities in the sum of $7000. and John Johnson, William H. Milwee and Jacob Long were named appraisers of the estate.

The administrator was ordered to pay the widow $300 in money or property for one year's support, and later was authorized to sell the perishable property and "higher out" the slaves and rent a lot and stable in Paris for one year.

At the December term of court the administrator's report of the sale of perishable property was confirmed and he was authorized to sell one gray mare, two horse colts, one work steer, one cross-cut saw and rent a dwelling house and lot and one horse mill, in Paris, for the year 1853.

The next year the widow married a man named Bruce and they asked the court to hurry the distribution of the properay, but this was not done until February, 1854, when the court having appointed W. H. Williams, M. L. Armstrong and Jacob Long to make division, they reported their action.

These commissioners had "on February 9, proceeded to the late residence of the deceased and found all property as listed." Division has been made of real estate and personal property except two negroes "not susceptible of division, Anderson, valued at $1200, and Harry a Guinea negro, at $400. These were "referred back to the court" with recommendation that they be sold and the money prorated to the heirs.

The widow now Mrs. Bruce, received half of the communiyt property, including $1516 real estate, advances made to her of $419.97½, a negro girl Phillis valued at $700, a cow and yearling $15, a cross-cut saw $6 and on sale of the negro men $39.01 was to be paid her, making her share $2-695.98.

The other heirs received each one-tenth of the remaining half of community estate and personal property, two of them having signed waivers of any interest, each share being $515.96. In making division one received $1.16 more than this amount which he was instructed to pay into the fund received from sale of the negroes.

The commissioners concluded their report by saying "Having now closed the duties assigned us, with an approving conscience, we hope our acts in the premises may prove satisfactory to all concerned," and annexed their bill of costs, $20 for the three at $2 per day "and $1 tavern bill."

The estate was finally closed and presumably "Satisfactory to all concerned" as there is no record of a contest.

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

The triumphs of medicine are not entirely confined to desperate or life-saving remedies. Some of the most valuable are for apparently minor disabilities and the lesser discomforts of life. I say "apparently" because what may seem a minor trouble to you may be severely crippling to the person afflicted.

Dr. Clendening

Among recent triumphs none is more noteworthy than the recently introduced injection treatment of varicose veins. If any sufferer with this disease has not heard of this method of treatment and does so through this article it will not have been written needlessly.

At a clinic the other day I saw a number of these patients who had received the treatment. One woman had an ulcer on the leg resulting from varicose veins, for 28 years. Her life had gradually narrowed down to the point where she did practically nothing else but dress and care for the ulcer. She had been treated by lights and salves and every then known form of treatment. Yet a month after the veins were injected the ulcer was nearly healed and she was comfortable and happy in her return to an almost normal life.

It is not difficult to imagine the happiness of this woman who had for all those years tried vainly to heal up this ugly spreading sore. No wonder she thought healing was impossible. While that is the longest period I have ever heard of the existence of an ulcer which responded to treatment, similar cases are common enough.

The treatment is by injection of a solution in the veins which obliterates them. The subsequent healing of the skin disease is due to improved nutrition, from better circulation.

The treatment must, of course, be carried out by a physician. It has become so widely known that such relief can be obtained in any community in the United States.

The results have been sufficiently studied over a long enough period of time that we can be quite definite in any individual case as to what may be expected. There are some failures, but the majority of the cases respond favorably, even magically.

The injection can be done in the doctor's office. People who are at work, such as barbers and beauty parlor operatives and clerks (people particularly liable to varicose veins because they spend so much time on their feet), can have a treatment during the noon hour and go back to work in the afternoon.

Guiding Your Child

WEIGHING VALUES

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne.

The increasing complications of modern family life, and the new and ever-changing demands of the educational system, especially in large cities, make it necessary to consider thoughtfully the whole routine of the child's life.

The child's routine no longer can be left to chance influences without real danger that his development will suffer because he enjoys too little of some things and too much of others.

Mothers of city children must, for instance, weigh in their own minds the relative importance of outdoor play, of hours spent in the classroom, or in parental companionship.

The plan for each child must be made in the light of his physical needs, his special aptitudes and weaknesses, his emotional stability and his own expressed desires.

These problems. No matter how carefully one weighs the pros and cons of any program, he can never be sure that he has done right until he sees the results.

It, however, is helpful to realize the necessity for conscious planning.

It helps, for instance, to consider definitely whether dancing lessons or the use in free outdoor play of the hours which such lessons would consume will be most beneficial, and whether Saturday afternoons spent in playing ball or going on a family excursion are more desirable.

Parents are apt to make the mistake of crowding the child's day with too many appointments.

Each one may in itself be enjoyable and advantageous, but together they militate against balanced development and his capacity to profit by the advantages he is given.

A WASHINGTON BYSTANDER

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Since John Sharpe Williams retired from the senate to meditate among his books in Mississippi, the job of congressional poet laureate has been vacant.

The Mississippian was quite fond of concocting rhymed satires and slipping them into the Congressional Record. He seldom read them, even back in the days when he was Representative Williams, democratic leader in the house. He would just slip them in under "leave to revise and extend."

Next day you would see house members chuckling in their seats as they glanced over the Record and stumbled upon his barbed witticisms, invariably aimed at the republicans.

Some Blank Verse.

Since then nobody in congress has done much in a poetic way. Sometimes, to be sure, a perfervid burst of political chin-music gets into the Record that has a tinge of blank verse about it.

That does not count. That is just a part of political stock in trade.

About the only man to walk at all in John Sharpe's footsteps is Senator George Norris of Nebraska. Now and then he is moved to express himself in verse, always of the satirical variety.

You get the notion that the Nebraska veteran insurgent within the republican fold finds a lot of amusement at times in measuring out his ideas syllable by syliable and finding happy rhymes to tag the ends of his lines.

If he ever has done that about his thoughts in relation to what he invariably terms the power trust, the Bystander would like to see the result. It is a safe bet only blank verse could serve his turn for that, or perhaps "blankety-blank" verse.

Verse About Hoover

Senator Norris, however, has contributed the first poetical outburst of the third session of the 71st congress. It is aimed at another favorite Norris target, Herbert Hoover.

It was in regard to presidential commissions, committees and such the senator lapsed into poetic peri-

Roxton, Petty, Cunningham, Midway Lead Cage Parade

SECOND LAP OF TOURNEY BEGINS FRIDAY, JAN. 9

Team Play of Rival Quints Shows Improvement After Slow Start

BY GENIE HARMS.

Since December 11 when the curtain on the Lamar county basketball tournament for class B schools was so boomingly drawn up huge scores, excessive personal fouling and barn massaging tactics have marked each of the series of games. The tournamont now stands with Roxton, Petty, Cunningham and Midway the undefeated teams.

At the beginning of the tournament each team showed up rough and ragged and badly in need of practice. Lack of cooperation among the members of each team made numerous attempts at the basket futile. The teams were apparently unfamiliar with fair park coliseum's floor and were unable to make much headway in the first few games.

The second series of games loomed up and proved to be the result of strenuous practice and much coaching. Personal fouls were cut down. In the first five games 118 personal fouls were called on members of the competing quintets. In the second series 85 personals were marked against the tagers; 239 points were made in the first series while 211 points were pitched into the ringer during the second series. This total of 85 personals and 211 points in the second games proves that each five clicked together more smoothly than in the previous encounters.

The top notchers on the tournament ladder center their offensive attack on the smooth clicking machine which sends passes from centers to forwards and thus into the basket. Cunningham depends almost entirely upon Coyle, a 1930 all-county mention man, center of the team, and Bledsoe, their forward. Coyle has shown up through the first two series as a likely candidate for county honors this year. Bledsoe, while a goal scoring ace, has had a number of personals called on him. Petty's cage machine works from guard to forwards and Elvie Beville's lightning floor work has been the feature of games played by this team. Stripling and Green from Midway have been the chief reasons for Midway's high standing in the tournament. Roxton tore the hopes of Paris high school and Powderly down when their cagers cooperated into a Crumley, McFatridge and Hicklin attack. Crumley and Hicklin have managed to toss ringers from seemingly impossible angles.

The first lap of the tournament is over. It looks now that Petty, Midway, Roxton and Cunningham are pretty well matched for the crown. These four quintets surpass the other contenders until they seem to be in different classes. Paris high school won the county championship in 1930. This year, however, the Wildcats have lost their one game to Roxton.

January 9 will open the third set of games. On this date Paris plays Powderly at 6 p. m. Deport meets Cunningham at 6:30; Chicota engages Brookston at 7:40; Howland tangles with Pattonville at 8:30 and Roxton and Midway collide at 9:20.

At the end of the tournament the championship team will be awarded a trophy. They will be tendered a banquet by the Lamar county chamber of commerce and also given a basketball by Johnson-Billingsley. The Paris News, cooperating with selected coaches, will choose an all-county team to be announced shortly after the tourney ends.

Football Coaches Retain Extra Point With Proviso For Fouls That May Occur

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29, (AP)—The master minds of the gridiron, meeting in convention as the American Football Coaches association, found time Monday to favor two changes in the playing rules along with retention of the point after touchdown in between rounds of a strenuous battle over the bugaboo of over-emphasis.

After the coaches, in heated debate, shelved in the morning session the sweeping recommendations of Hugo Bezdek designed to curb over-emphasis, a series of softened resolutions proposed by W. W. Roper, former Princeton head coach, were adopted almost unanimously on second thought in the afternoon meeting.

The sweeping reforms suggested by Bezdek, Penn State athletic director—centralization of all college athletics under a department of physical education, adoption of athletic budgets, abolishment of spring practice and fall workouts until September 15, establishment of football coaches as bona-fide members of college faculties, were finally reduced to three points, dealing chiefly with fall and spring practice and post-season games.

The text of Roper's resolution, adopted with only a few dissenting voices, follows:

"We, the members of the American Football Coaches association reaffirm our faith and belief in the virile qualities of the game of football and its influence on the youth of the nation in building character, courage, team-play and clean living, and in view of the earnest discussion among all interested in the future welfare of the game, and in a sincere desire to rid it of some of its objectionable features, be it

"Resolved, (1) that fall football practice start approximately September 15 and that there be no organized practice prior to that date:

"(2) That post-season games be kept a minimum and that the best interests of football are against charity games, except in exceptional cases:

"(3) That spring practice be not compulsory upon the players and be organized in moderation so as not to conflict with other sports, the practice during the fall season shall not exceed two hours a day, including night and afternoon sessions."

The resolution, coming out of the fire of bitter debate, has the effect only of putting the coaches on record as favoring these changes in the pigskin system. Nevertheless their vote indicates a willingness to support policies already in effect in most of the big conference groups.

In between the over-emphasis debates which struck deep into tender spots in many sections of the meeting hall, the coaches adopted by unanimous vote recommendations of the rules committee headed by Lou Little of Columbia. These recommendations would have the National Collegiate A. A. committee retain the try for the extra point after touchdown but would strip from officials the right to award or take away the point because of a foul on the extra play.

The second change in the rules would give the privilege of advancing the ball after recovery, to a team that has one of its kicks blocked. Under the present code the defending team alone can advance the ball after recovering a blocked kick.

Seven recommendations, all embodying the answers to questions sent out in a questionnaire to every member of the association, were accepted with little or no debate. The coaches voted, 182 to 89, in favor of retaining the point after touchdown, and 208 to 71, in favor of taking away from officials the right to award the extra point. The coaches suggested that the usual penalties for fouls governing the play for extra point be substituted, the ball being advanced to the one-yard line and the play being made over again if the defense is off-side, while the offense would try again from the seven-yard line if offside on the first attempt.

Gar Wood, Kaye Don May Vie In Speedboat Race

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 29, (AP)—Gar Wood, America's speed boat king and international champion, again will send his fastest mount against the speediest boat in England, if America's invitation to match races here this spring is accepted.

The invitation has been extended to Kaye Don, famous English race driver, who has succeeded to the helm of Miss England II, in which the late Sir Henry Segrave set a world speed record on water last summer.

Don is planning to bring Miss England II to America next spring, to show it at the Argentine exposition in Buenos Aires. Through the Miami Beach Yacht club, sponsors of the annual Miami Beach regatta in which Gar Wood will test his newest mounts, Don has been invited to stop in Florida and match his boat with Gar Wood's Miss America IX.

Miss America IX is the craft in which Wood again defended the Harmsworth trophy in Detroit last September. He plans to send it over the measured mile here in the Miami Beach regatta in an effort to better the world record of 98.76 miles an hour set by Segrave. Segrave was mortally injured when Miss England II dove after making the record run.

ART THE GREAT SHIRES PLACED BEHIND THE BARS

Arrested on Charges of Being Drunk, Carrying Concealed Weapons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 29, (AP)—The motion picture career of Charles Arthur "The Great" Shires bumped to a sudden halt Monday to allow its principal time to get out of jail.

And in getting into jail, during the wee hours of the morning on charges of drunkenness and carrying concealed weapons, "Whataman" proved he was a showman, as ever.

Desk Sergeant Gordon Towne, in charge of the Hollywood station, said Shires weaved in and began to regale him with a monologue.

Towne remarked: "Gwan home."

Shires announced he would stay, Towne said, and in a high crescendo of shouts, declared, "I've got rights as a citizen, haven't I? Try and put me out if I want to stay in this hoosegow."

Towne didn't. He took the ball player to sunrise court where he pleaded not guilty to charges of drunkenness and was ordered to trial next Wednesday. Shires deposited $520 bail money tonight and was released from jail.

Shires was declared to have possessed a pair of brass knuckles, a felony in California, the penalty for which may be one to five years in prison, but the district attorney refused to press the concealed weapons charge, saying Shires was not a known criminal. The charge was reduced to a misdemeanor.

Shires later said he went to the station to report he had been held up and robbed of $50. Towne said if he came to the station to report a robbery, he apparently forgot it.

Shires, former major league ball player and boxer, came to Hollywood to enter pictures. His first picture was in a boxing serial. His last one to date was behind the bars with newspaper photographers doing the shooting.

NEW YEARS DAY OPPONENTS BACK TO REHEARSALS

Squads Get Day Of Rest Sunday; Zuppke Names Quarterback

DALLAS, Dec. 29. (AP)—Refreshed in mind and body after a day devoted to relaxation and tightly chaperoned sight-seeing tours, the football squads of the Middlewest and Southwest returned with zest Monday to practice siege in preparation for Thursday's charity battle.

In particularly high spirits was the mid-west squad as it romped through a single workout. The will to win has pervaded the invader's ranks and Coach Bob Zuppke appeared downright enthusiastic over the impending encounter.

"This is one of the easiest teams to handle I ever saw," said the veteran Illinois coach. "Although many of them have been playing against each other for three years, they have developed a fine team spirit and are rearing to go right now. That's about half the battle in football."

Among other things, Coach Zuppke decided Monday on his quarterback, the one position that had him worried. Stanley Bodman big tackle of the University of Illinois, will direct the mid-west attack when he is in the game. If and when Bodman goes out, the task will fall to Leo Jensvold, University of Iowa line crasher, Zuppke said.

Outside of that, the mid-west mentor was unable to hazard a guess on his starting line-up. Among the possible backfield nominations he listed Kissell, Purdue; Horn, Ohio State; Delg, Marquette; Molloy, Loyola, and Jensvold. All five have demonstrated they can pass, kick, and run, with Kissell the most elusive ball carrier of the group. Zuppke said he expected to have "two good lines" so is not bothered on that score.

Coach Morley Jennings of the Southwest put those of his quad on hand through a double-barreled workout morning and afternoon and was ready to report progress. The "home" team, which includes players from as far east as Florida, is being outfitted with a wide repertoire of passing and deceptive running plays to offset the apparent weight advantage of the Zuppke outfit. Coach Fred Thomsen of Arkansas has busied himself whipping the southwest line into shape.

Five players on whom the Southwest is counting strongly were scheduled to arrive by airplane from Los Angeles early Monday night. They include Jake Wilson, quarterback, and Bochey Koch, guard, both of Baylor, who played outstanding games for the West in Saturday's charity tilt at Los Angeles, and Noble Atkins, big Texas Christian University center also credited with some noble work in the coast battle. The other two were Louie Long, Southern Methodist end, and Louis Paradeaux, Baylor center.

Wilson, Koch, Atkins, and Long virtually are assured starting berths on the Southwest team, and Paradeaux doubtless will alternate with Atkins at center. The fact that the three Baylor stars are familiar with the Jennings system will lessen their handicap in reporting late. They will have two days in which to familiarize themselves with the signals and plan of attack. At a meeting Monday Dixie classic officials decided not to permit a broadcast of the New Year's game. As all profits of the encounters go to the Scottish Rite hospital for crippled children here the promoters said they felt the fans should be given no incentive to stay at home. A sum of $10,000 was cleared last year.

"That's right. Start nagging me."

CHAPTER 6.

"Jetty, why can't we finish this all up at once. Get married tonight. No one would care. Now that you're mine, I don't want to give you up—not for a minute. I want you now, and always. With a couple of generous bribes, I can fix it all fine. What do you say?" The exhilaration and the wine had unbalanced him somewhat. Besides, he had not altogether missed the significance of her hesitancy in accepting him. And now that she was in the mood, it would be darn smart to get the thing over with. Get her while he had the chance. No time like right now for doing anything, he thought, a little disconnectedly.

Norman's sugestion was so foreign to her thoughts and seemed so preposterous to her that it frightened her. When she had agreed to the engagement earlier in the evening, the actual idea of marriage had been so vague and distant that it seemed to have very little real connection at all. Sometime, she had promised, she would be Norman's wife; but it had never occurred to her that "sometime" might be very soon.

Again, his bigness and power made her afraid of him, afraid of herself. If he could so persuade her to promise to marry him, what else might he not do? She tried to draw away from him.

"Oh, Norman—no—not tonight!" she gasped.

"Haven't changed your mind already, have you?" he demanded brusquely.

"Why—no—but I didn't say I was ready yet. Besides, it would be an awful blow to mother. She'll want a big wedding for us—"

"All nonsense," impatiently. "What difference does all that make? If you loved me, you'd be ready any time."

"Oh, please, Norman! I don't think you know what you're saying, do you? Haven't you celebrated our a engagement a bit too strenuously?" She tried to laugh away the awkward situation.

But he was in no mood to be reprimanded. "That's right. Start nagging me right from the beginning. Is that the kind of wife you're going to be?"

"Well, if you feel that way about it. I don't have to be your wife at all," resentfully.

"No? We'll see about that."

She didn't know what to say. She didn't want to make him angry here and now; besides, she knew his rudeness was caused by too much liquor. How could she persuade him to drive her home and leave her for tonight?

His mood changed abruptly, to her vast relief. "Come on, Jetty, be a sport. I didn't mean what I just said. You know—I'm so crazy about you I lose my head. Let's surprise the whole bunch and get it over with." He held her so close now that he hurt, and is face was pressed to hers.

"It's impossible, Norman. Please drive me home. We'll talk it over tomorrow, and perhaps we can arrange for it soon. If you love me, you will."

"Oh, all right. I thought you were a better sort than that, Jetty. But I'll take you home to your mother. I'm no cave man."

With a tremendous relief, she settled back into her corner as he started the motor and shot out into the highway. All the way, he drove at a terrific speed, while she shrank back in fear and watched the road with her tired burning eyes, that seemed to draw her gaze like a steel magnet.

She sat so tensely that when they swung into the curving drive at her home, her effort to relax was painful. Norman hadn't said another word all the way—and neither had she.

Now he said, "Well, you're home all safe and single. Does that suit you?"

"Thank you, Norman. Sleep it off and come over tomorrow evening, will you?" she laid her hand on his arm with a little appealing gesture.

He covered it with his own. "All right, Jetty. Sorry if I annoyed you. It's all right. Got a little kiss for me?"

She responded to his caress and slipped out of his arms as quickly as possible. Her father and mother had just arrived and were in the library when she came in. She stood in the doorway, her coat falling away from one white shoulder and sweeping the floor. Strenuous as the day had been, with the added strain of the reckless drive home, she looked radiantly fresh and young to her two fond elders.

Her mother went toward her and took her in her arms. "Is my little girl tired after her big day? You certainly put the right climax on it, dear. Much as I wanted you to accept Norman, it was quite a surprise for us. Wasn't it dad?"

"Leave it to Jetty, mother. She knows what she's doing. Her indifference was only pretense all the time, anyway, eh, daughter?" he twinkled.

Jorettia raised her shoulders and sighed softly. "No, I think I was as surprised as anyone. But I'm glad you'er all satisfied. I'm not sorry."

Mrs. Dowling laughed lightly. "There, dear. You are so tired. What a day for a little girl. Off to bed with you and you'll be the happiest girl in the world tomorrow. Every girl has doubts and misgivings after she takes the first step. But you'll get over that." She kissed Joretta on the cheek and led her from the room.

After a hot tub and a brisk rub, Joretta felt as if she had washed away part of the bewildering doubts. In her sheer silk pajamas, deeply flounced with lace, she sat before her dressing table, brushing her hair with brisk strokes. Her hair gleamed like gold satin and the waves cast dull shadows as she moved.

Her thoughts were still chaos. And oddly, try as she would to ignore it, a trim uniformed figure with sleek black hair and black-lashed grey eyes persisted through them all. There was something more about Jim Norton than his handsome appearance which had attracted her attention. He wasn't the first handsome man she had met. Norman wasn't one of them, but he was good looking enough. It wasn't just that.

Why had Jim Norton looked at her as if he experienced the same thing? No doubt, beautiful girls were common enough to him, also. She moved her brush slowly, thoughtfully, delighting in the memory of the way his deep, serious eyes had looked at her. Just the memory of it gave her a pleasant sensation, new to her experience.

Then, she remembered. She was engaged to Norman. She had taken the brush in her other hand and the mirror reflected the handsome platinum-mounted diamond which she had worn only a few hours. Its facets caught and reflected the light into the glass in a myriad of changing colors. She would be the envy of half the girls of her set. Not a few of them had been playing their hands furiously to win Norman Williams. He was one of the best eligibles in the west. She smiled to herself as she thought of mothers whose dream castles would shatter when they heard of her engagement the next morning. She would be the subject of discussion over scores of breakfast trays: aspiring mothers versus hopeful daughters. And reflected that her mother would quite have despaired, had Norman's fancy selected another girl tonight.

Too bewildered to delate her situation any longer, she kicked off her ostrich-trimmed mules and sank into one of the modernistic twin beds that were finished in silver and black enamel. Surrounded with a maze of lustrous brocade and lace, gleaming crystal and silver, beauty and luxury, the newly-affianced bride slept in the delicious weariness that only youth knows.

She was awakened next morning by the shrilling of the telephone bell beside her bed. The room was still darkened with the drawn curtains, but the little silver clock beside the telephone impudently informed her that it was 11:30. It was Norman calling.

"Good morning, sweetheart. Did I call you too early?"

"Of course not, Norman."

"If I did, it's because I couldn't wait any longer to tell you I'm sorry I was rather a beast last night to you. I meant what I said, but I know I was unreasonable. Forgive me, please."

"Oh, yes, I knew, of course, that you'd had too many drinks."

"Well, it was a big day, Jetty," he laughed. "I'll go slower again. May I see you tonight—or this minute—the sooner, the better. How about lunch at the club, any time it suits you?"

"All right. I'll meet you about one. In the Palm Room?"

"That's sweet of you, dear. Now I know I'm forgiven. I can breathe easier. Shall we get a crowd together and go somewhere to celebrate tonight?"

"Have you forgotten Deborah Walling's reception tonight? There will be six more girls 'out' in the next fortnight."

"I'm not interested in the rest of them. The first one out is the best, but I'll go to the rest of the parties if I may have most of the dances with you."

"I can't promise you that, but I'll see you at the club at one."

Joe. E. Brown Scores Signally In the Hilarious "Going Wild" Featured at the Lamar

A riot of fast-moving fun is "Going Wild," the First National and Vitaphone feature which closes a two-day run at the Lamar today.

The picture stars Joe. E. Brown the talking screen's most popular comedian, and the result is that there is scarcely a quiet minute in the house. "Going Wild" is an even funnier picture than Brown's two previous pictures, "Hold Everything" and "Top Speed," which set attendance records everywhere in the country and established Brown on the top rung of comedy.

The picture is liberally interspersed with catchy songs.

The airplane race at the finish will find the audience alternately gasping at the thrills and going into gales of laughter at Brown's antics in the sky. There is some very daring flying and a surprise finish which is a distinct novelty.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Dec. 29. (AP)—An opening decline promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables was followed by advances on covering and some trade commission house buying in cotton Monday. March contracts, after selling off to 9.32 at the start, advanced to 10.12 in the late trading or 23 points above Saturday's close, but lost about half the gain under a spurt of realizing in the last few minutes. That delivery closed at 10.01, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 9 to 19 points. The maximum advance was in old January contracts, with other months showing net gains of 9 to 12 points.

The advance was accompanied by reports of small offerings from the south and the opinion was expressed in some quarters that any distressed lots of spot cotton had been liquidated before Christmas. This led to some talk of a probable scarcity of contracts developing in the event of any improvement in demand, particularly in the spring and summer positions. Additional notices estimated at about 7,100 bales were issued against new January contracts without appreciable effect on the market.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29. (AP)—While the cotton market continued under holiday influences Monday there was somewhat more trading. Opening prices here were 4 points down but the market soon improved, however, on trade buying and covering.

Despite occasional moderate reactions prices continued to improve even ignoring some later weakness in stocks until active months sold up to 21 to 25 points above the lows. After a reaction of 4 to 7 points due to realizing, the general market closed steady at net advances for the day of 14 to 18 points.

Liverpool came in as due to 5 points worse than due and private cables stated there was hedge selling and the continent was liquidating long contracts. After opening 4 points down with March at 9.35 and May at 10.09, the market rallied in sympathy with an improvement in stocks and before the end of the first hour March traded up to 9.39 and May to 10.16 or 4 to 7 points above the opening prices.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Dec. 29. (AP)—Prohibition received blame in some quarters Monday as being largely responsible for a fresh collapse that carried grain values down to new low records. July wheat fell to 61 1-2 cents a bushel, a bottom level heretofore unreached in 54 years. There was a simultaneous all-around drop in corn to the lowest point since 1921. With the price breaks were reports the persistent downward swings of grain values were traceable to prohibition having shut off a large amount of business with Europe and having forced European countries to increase production of foodstuffs, with consequent lessened demand for American products.

Wheat closed irregular, 1 3-8 cents a bushel lower than Saturday to 1-8 cent advance; corn 1 5-8 to 1 7-8 cents down; oats 1-2 to 7-8 cents off, and provisions from 12 cents setback to a rise of 20.

Closing indemnities: Wheat: May 51, 51 1-8; July 61, 62- 62 1-8. Corn—March 62 7-8, 63 3-4; May 64 3-4 to 7-8, 67 5-8 to 3-4; July 66 1-8, 69 1-4.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Dec. 29. (AP)—Without much support from investment buying the floundering stock market charted a bumpy path Saturday, closing irregularly lower.

Most of the larger losses were in the rails and a few utilities and specialties, for pivotal industrials finished steady.

Weakness of wheat in the world markets was a disturbing element. The July option at Chicago sagged to 61 1-2 cents, the lowest since 1896, when the price was 54 1-4. Liverpool, reopening after the Christmas holiday, saw sharp declines and students of that venerable market reported the December delivery had gone to the lowest quotation, with the sole exception of 1894, since 1554. Chicago corn also was heavy.

A year-end spurt in day loan interest rates to 4 per cent, the highest in eight months, reflected the calling of about $100,000,000 in loans by banks.

In general, the stock market had two fair rallies. The first followed a heavy opening and lasted until early afternoon. Prices then gave way again, with U. S. Steel dipping a point. There was a recovery from these lows, but the market softened in the final hour when the rails weakened. Covering in the last fifteen minutes helped most of the list, with the exception of the carrier stocks.

DALLAS WOMAN IS FINALLY RELIEVED OF LIFE LONG ILL

Describes Wonderful Aid Argotane Treatment Gave Her

"As long as I can remember," said Mrs. Emma Wezer, of 1908 N. Fearle, Dallas, Texas, "I have suffered terribly with indigestion, constipation, and a sluggish liver. Long before my marriage, I had indigestion. One night, I was visiting a sick person and was sitting on the side of the bed and a hard lump seemed to form suddenly and I just fainted away. That is how serious my case was.

"I have taken medicines and have gone to doctors, but it seemed that nothing could help me. I could not eat anything much without suffering and I was so nervous at night and couldn't sleep. I had frequent headaches and really never did feel like doing anything.

"I read of Argotane and decided that if it had helped other people in Dallas, it ought to help me. And it certainly did. I really can't say enough good things about Argotane. Why, I am not troubled with constipation any more. Formerly, when I had a bowel action it was accomplished by such pains but Argotane acts mildly and I have been relieved of the pains.

"I can eat anything I want now and I can just tell my liver is working properly. I feel so good, it is almost unbelievable.

"After he saw the results I had obtained from Argotane, my husband started taking it too, and believe me, we are two Argotane boosters now. We are glad to endorse it and to say that it is indeed a wonder on earth."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Paris at the Palace Drug Store.—Adv.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

"THERE IS A TIDE In the affairs of Men"

Opportunity comes to everyone, but your success depends upon your ability to go to the door to meet Opportunity when it knocks. Waiting for your ship to come in will always be in vain unless the sails are filled with something more vital than empty wishing. Success is gained only by those who are prepared for it.

1931

Brings Opportunity!

Another year is now at hand, bringing new opportunities for those who prepare themselves for success.

Decide now and make an iron-bound resolution to invest part of your savings each week or each month in Paris Building and Loan shares. It is a wise decision to make, one of which you will always be proud.

Come in and let's talk it over. There is no safer, sounder or more practical or more profitable form of safe, systematic saving on which you can decide.
